ABOUT US

For more than 45 years, Development and Peace has been working to transform lives in the Global South. As the official international development organization of the Catholic Church in Canada, Development and Peace works in partnership with local organizations in the Global South to create greater justice in the world and to act in solidarity with the most vulnerable.

In Canada, we raise awareness on the root causes of poverty and injustice in the developing world and mobilize Canadians to act for social change. Development and Peace is also the Canadian member of Caritas Internationalis, an international confederation of Catholic humanitarian and development organizations, and one of the largest humanitarian aid networks in the world.
OUR WORK

OVERSEAS

Development and Peace works in over 30 countries in Africa, Asia, Latin America and the Middle East. Inspired by the principles of Catholic Social Teaching, particularly the preferential option for the poor, we partner with local organizations that know the needs of their communities and can address these effectively. Our programs aim to bring about sustainable and systemic change so that all can live in dignity.

We also respond to humanitarian crises, providing emergency relief and supporting reconstruction efforts so that communities can rebuild and become more resilient to future disasters.

IN CANADA

Our programs in Canada are aimed at inspiring Canadians to stand in solidarity with populations in the Global South and to take action to change the structures that perpetuate injustice and poverty. We have two yearly campaigns that educate Canadians on issues affecting the most poor and vulnerable in the Global South and to raise funds to support our programs.

We have a network of 10,000 members across Canada who share our campaigns in their communities, parishes and schools so change can happen. We also work closely with youth and schools to engage a new generation in the important mission of building a world of justice.
This past August, we traveled with a delegation to the Philippines to visit parts of the country that were affected by Super Typhoon Haiyan, and where Development and Peace is intervening to help communities rebuild.

The people we met told us that this storm was unlike any other they had known. The winds were of an unprecedented force and created a storm surge that had never been experienced by the people, and left them reeling from the sheer level of destruction.

We could see that the people there are still recovering – both emotionally from the trauma and physically in trying to build new homes and community structures. What we came to realize, as we met communities who face eviction from their coastal land, small family farmers who are still trying to revive their crops, and fishermen who lost their boats with no savings to buy new ones, is that this disaster reflects the convergence of the growing global issues that prevent people from rising out of poverty and render them increasingly vulnerable.

These issues include an economy of exclusion, the growing impacts of climate change, the marginalization of women, the lack of educational opportunities, the unfettered exploitation of natural resources, and policies that do not place the poor and most vulnerable at the centre, if at all. None of these issues can be addressed individually or with stop-gap measures. At a time when the risk of the poor becoming poorer seems to be increasing exponentially, the work of Development and Peace and its membership in challenging the structures that perpetuate poverty is of immense relevance and importance.

Pope Francis reminded us of this relevance in this year’s apostolic exhortation The Joy of the Gospel: “Today we also have to say ‘thou shalt not’ to an economy of exclusion and inequality. Such an economy kills. How can it be that it is not a news item when an elderly homeless person dies of exposure, but it is news when the stock market loses two points? This is a case of exclusion. Can we continue to stand by when food is thrown away while people are starving? This is the case of inequality.”

Whether it be supporting women in Afghanistan in becoming political leaders, helping Syrian and Iraqi refugees meet their needs, facilitating connections between peasant movements in Latin America to struggle against the concentration of land ownership, or asking our government to ensure our mining companies respect human and environmental rights overseas, every action taken over this last year has been to not simply counter the problems we face, but to dismantle them.

As someone in the Philippines told us, “Some may be roofless, some may be homeless, but none are hopeless.” And our hope remains in theirs that together we can replace the conditions of suffering, disasters and poverty with those of equality, justice and love.

INTERNATIONAL PROGRAMS

Development and Peace works with local communities and organizations around the world, and establishes close, long-lasting relationships of trust and support with them over time. Development and Peace is not simply a donor; it is a friend and an ally. Together, we are tackling the causes of systemic poverty and injustice, and striving to build a better world where all women and men can live in a peaceful, just and sustainable way.

OUR SIX AREAS OF INTERVENTION

PEACE AND RECONCILIATION

Development and Peace supports organizations that work to prevent tensions and conflicts, and that, when violence does erupt, immediately seek alternative and peaceful solutions. They are engaged in peace-building initiatives that address the causes of violence, favour mediation, encourage local participation, value traditional practices, promote tolerance and find ways to peacefully settle tensions.

NATURAL RESOURCES

Most of the planet’s land, water, oil and mineral resources are concentrated in the hands of a minority of individuals and corporations. Too frequently, the poor are the ones who suffer the most from the negative impacts of unbridled exploitation of these natural resources, with very few means and opportunities to make their voices heard. Development and Peace stands by impoverished populations who are struggling for their rights as people, workers and citizens, and who persistently engage local, national and international actors in order to protect their environment.

DEMOCRACY AND CITIZEN PARTICIPATION

In many countries, citizens do not have the space to engage in important debates or participate in decisions on issues that directly concern them and their communities. Development and Peace is working from the grassroots up to encourage people in many different ways to fulfill their role as citizens, to promote and encourage their participation in decision-making processes, to demand accountability and transparency from their elected authorities and senior civil servants, and to expand the rule of law at the local, regional and national levels.

ECOLOGICAL JUSTICE

Poor people everywhere are particularly vulnerable to ecological changes because more often than not these affect their daily lives. In the Global South, many communities do not have the capacity or resources to protect themselves against the devastating impacts of environmental damage and climate change. Development and Peace works in many countries with people and organizations to help them adapt to these changes in ways which are climate smart and to implement alternative models of sustainable development that are environmentally safe, socially relevant, and economically viable.
EQUALITY BETWEEN WOMEN AND MEN
Everywhere around the world, women are far more vulnerable to poverty and discrimination than men. Because of the fundamental dignity of every human being, DEVELOPMENT AND PEACE believes that this must change. We support groups that work to ensure that everyone, both men and women, have the same rights and the same access to goods, services and opportunities, and that the contribution of women to society is recognized and valued as much as men’s.

FOOD
While the world could in principle feed its entire population, every day hundreds of millions of people go hungry. DEVELOPMENT AND PEACE is working with farmers and peasant associations around the world so that everyone can have safe and adequate food on a daily basis. In conjunction with local organizations, we are engaging policymakers to support family farming, regulate trade in food, and encourage the participation and control of farmers over their products and their means of production (land, seeds, etc.).

HUMANITARIAN AID
In situations of natural disasters, armed conflict and other humanitarian crises where people’s lives are in danger, DEVELOPMENT AND PEACE acts very quickly to support the most vulnerable without distinction. In all those circumstances, DEVELOPMENT AND PEACE provides immediate humanitarian needs, engages in rebuilding destroyed houses and community infrastructure, supports the re-launch of local economies and strengthens the social fabric. We mobilize and engage local communities to transform a tragedy into an opportunity for building a better society based on citizen participation, where no one is left behind.
HIGHLIGHTS OF OUR INTERNATIONAL PROGRAMS
HERE ARE SOME OF THE ACHIEVEMENTS MADE IN 2013–2014 IN COUNTRIES WHERE WE WORK.

AFGHANISTAN

Four peace councils were set up by our partner, Sanayee Development Organization (SDO), in a very unstable region in northern Afghanistan, something that would have been inconceivable a few months earlier. By promoting dialogue, these councils are contributing directly to easing tensions and preventing new incidences of violence in this region.

CAMBODIA

Corruption and violence plague Cambodia, and women are the main victims. The support of Development and Peace has enabled thousands of women to unite together in networks to assert their rights to government authorities and foreign companies. By joining their voices, they were successful in gaining the support of several textile companies for a wage increase in Cambodian factories.

BRAZIL

Several of our partners worked tirelessly to ensure that a new mining law would not be adopted without the input of those most affected. They demanded that communities affected by mining activities be allowed to participate in the development of this law, so that their rights would be respected and they would have a greater share of the profits generated.
COLOMBIA

Our partners and allies participated in national agricultural strikes and demonstrations that took place in 2013–2014 to protest a bill that would criminalize the saving of seeds by farmers. In response, the government placed a moratorium on the bill and implemented measures to support and protect farmers and peasants.

While an armed conflict has been raging in the country for over 50 years, and has been concentrated in rural areas over the last decade, the unification of rural social movements and the launch of a dialogue with the government is an encouraging sign of peace-building.

HAITI

In February 2014, our partner, the Institut de technologie et d’animation (ITECA), completed a house-building project, thanks to our support and the support of the Canadian government. Today, 400 poor families live in these earthquake and cyclone-resistant houses. This project is different from other construction projects, because it was designed and implemented by Haitians themselves. For Development and Peace, the involvement of local communities is the best guarantee of sustainable development.
HONDURAS AND PERU

In November 2013, our partner, the Centro Hondureño de Promoción al Desarrollo Comunitario (CEHPRODEC), in collaboration with other Latin American organizations, obtained a hearing before the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights on the responsibility of certain countries – including Canada – for human rights violations that have taken place as a result of their companies’ mining operations in Latin America. The Archdiocese of Huancayo, Peru, also participated in the hearing.

MADAGASCAR

The work of our partners in Madagascar contributed to free and transparent democratic elections that brought an end to the political and economic crisis that had persisted since 2009. Thanks to radio programs broadcast throughout the country via the 19 radio stations affiliated with Radio Don Bosco, and the outreach done by the National Committee for Election Observation (CNOE–Comité national d’observation des élections) in 54 of the country’s 110 districts, people in Madagascar were made aware of their rights as citizens, including political participation.
PHILIPPINES

In the first five months after Typhoon Haiyan hit the Philippines in November 2013, our partner Caritas Philippines–NASSA came to the aid of over 75,000 families, providing them with emergency assistance. These families received food, drinking water, sanitation and hygiene services, non-food items, emergency shelters and counseling. Cash allowances and assistance with materials also helped fisherfolks and farmers return to income-generating activities.

NIGERIA

The work of our partner, the Social and Economic Rights Action Centre (SERAC), which supports communities that are threatened with forced eviction from their land, continue to bear fruit. Through community participation, an urban development plan has been drawn up for more than 40,000 inhabitants. This development plan takes environmental, cultural, economic and social issues into account, and was selected as a finalist from among submissions from 93 countries, in the Fuller Challenge 2014, an international alternative architecture competition.

APPEAL FOR THE PHILIPPINES

On November 8th, 2013, the Philippines experienced the worst typhoon in its history – Super Typhoon Haiyan. Over 14 million people were affected by this natural disaster, and in collaboration with the Canadian Conference of Catholic Bishops, Development and Peace launched a special appeal to respond to this crisis. Canadians showed a tremendous outpouring of generosity to come in aid to their sisters and brothers who lost their homes, livelihoods, and for many, their loved ones. Special collections, fundraising events and other activities took place across the country with the result that $12 million was raised for relief and reconstruction efforts. Today, Development and Peace has made significant progress with its local partners and will continue to work over the next two years to support communities in building a better future. CREATING GLOBAL SOLIDARITY

Last year, several members and supporters of Development and Peace had the opportunity to experience solidarity in a new way by travelling overseas to visit with Development and Peace’s partners in the Philippines and Zambia. A group from the Maritimes visited with partners in the Philippines, travelling to several parts of the country to gain a better understanding of the issues facing poor communities.

A delegation that included Most Rev. Michael Miller, Archbishop of Vancouver; Most Rev. Jean-Louis Plouffe, Bishop of Sault Ste. Marie; Pat Kennedy, President of Development and Peace; Arthur Peters, Executive Director of Share Life Toronto; Fran Lucas, 2nd Vice-President & Chairperson of Communications of the Catholic Women’s League; Sr. Nida Fe Chavez, General Treasurer of the Sisters of St. Joseph of Toronto; and Patrick Fletcher, Senior Advisor for Theology and Social Doctrine at the Canadian Conference of Catholic Bishops, as well as staff of Development and Peace, also travelled to the Philippines but with the specific purpose of visiting communities affected by Typhoon Haiyan and to see the progress being made through reconstruction efforts.

Lastly, several youth members travelled to Zambia to meet with our partners there and experience a new culture. All left with a deepened sense of solidarity with their sisters and brothers in the Global South.
FOOD FOR ALL!

There are still close to one billion people in the world today who suffer from hunger, and Development and Peace showed its solidarity with those who make up this staggering figure by joining Caritas Internationalis’ global campaign, One Human Family, Food for All, which aims to end hunger by 2025. Pope Francis launched the campaign in December, calling hunger a global scandal that can’t be ignored. Our 2014 Share Lent campaign focused on the multiple factors that contribute to hunger in the Global South and how our partners are addressing these causes and working with small family farmers to help them gain access to land and resources, and improve their agricultural techniques.

A VOICE FOR JUSTICE ON PARLIAMENT HILL

Development and Peace’s social justice work here in Canada is aimed at bringing attention to the causes of injustice and poverty in the Global South and organizing actions to change policies and behaviours that negatively impact communities. Last fall, Development and Peace revisited an issue that we have been campaigning on for many years: the call for an ombudsman for the Canadian extractive sector operating overseas. The Voice for Justice campaign was launched in light of continued reports from our partners in the Global South that communities are experiencing violations of their human and environmental rights by Canadian mining companies. The campaign gathered more than 85,000 signatures in support of an ombudsman who could receive complaints from communities.

On May 14th, 2014, hundreds of Development and Peace members and supporters of this campaign gathered on Parliament Hill for a rally calling for an ombudsman and to present Members of Parliament with signatures from their ridings. The rally was followed by meetings with 26 MPs, which were in addition to 65 MP meetings organized by members across the country.

Their courage and commitment inspires us to keep on this journey with them.

We are thankful for the ongoing support of our institutional partners, most notably the Canadian Conference of Catholic Bishops (CCCB), the Department of Foreign Affairs, Trade and Development (DFATD), the Quebec Ministry of International Relations (MRI), as well as our member partners in the CIDSE and Caritas Internationalis networks.

Development and Peace owes the success of its programs in the Global South to the unwavering commitment of its members, donors, volunteers, and devoted sympathizers, including dioceses across the country, religious communities, the Catholic Women’s League and many others. Your valuable support is what makes us all part of one human family.
