The poorest and most vulnerable of our world will suffer the worst impacts of the pandemic

With your help, WE CAN MAKE A DIFFERENCE

A story from Somalia

The economic impacts of an erratic 2020 rainy season, locust infestation and the COVID-19 pandemic are increasing the severity of food insecurity in Somalia.

Shahido, a 40-year-old mother to 3 girls and 7 boys who lives in a camp for internally displaced persons is ready to face this triple threat thanks to a food security project launched by our partner Trócaire with our support.

Shahido and 100 other women will have access to land, seeds, equipment and training to farm produce to feed their families.

"Through this project, I believe I will be able to expand my business, feed my family, pay school fees for my children and gain knowledge on various methods of farming."
